

The image shows the exterior of The Lowther Pavilion, a modern building with a two-story design. The upper floor is clad in large, rectangular, copper-colored panels. The ground floor features a combination of light-colored vertical wood slats and large glass windows and doors. A white horizontal band runs above the ground-floor entrance. To the right, a blue sign with white text identifies the building. The foreground consists of a dark asphalt area and a patch of bare earth with some small plants. Trees are visible in the background under a clear blue sky.
